COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The Board of Selectmen met on Oct. 20 with Acting Town Manager Harold L. Bean and Town Clerk Merton Brown present. Chairman Leland Brown was absent due to being out of town. Sam Timberlake served as chairman.

Fire Chief Harold Carver was present to present several requisitions for approval. Approval was granted by the Selectmen to procure the following items: Firemen's badges, 500 feet of 1 1/2" hose 600 pound pressure, water cooler for the Fire Station, 2 anvil extinguishers, wrenches and sockets, and a portable pump to replace a portable pump purchased about 15 years ago which is nearly worn out.

Charlene Lever representing the Head Start program conducted under the Oxford County Community Action Council appeared before the Selectmen relative to entering into a contract with the town to lease the West Bethel school for a period of 10 years. She also presented a draft of a plan for interior alterations. There would be no cost to the town for any alterations or for shingling the roof. Utilities would be paid by Head Start. By the time this is published the Selectmen will have again met to determine the terms and conditions of the lease agreement acceptable to them.

The Acting Town Manager invited Norris Brown to appear before the Board relative to the liability coverage on the several town owned properties. Mr. Brown explained the present coverage and the possibilities of broadening the coverage. The Board instructed Mr. Brown to meet with the Acting Town Manager, they to prepare a proposal and several alternatives for future presentation.

Ron Ashworth, Executive Director, Community Center, Rumford, contacted the Town Office relative to Bethel youth participating in their hockey program. He stated that a couple of Bethel families had inquired about their participation. The cost to the town would be $30 for 10 participants or any number thereunder. As the town has no funds presently available for this purpose, Mr. Ashworth is to be informed to submit a written request at a later date to be reviewed by the Budget Committee for their recommendations in the 1976 budget.

BETHEL'S FIRST CYCLOCROSS DRAWS SMALL CROWD OCT. 19

A small but enthusiastic group turned out on Sunday to watch and participate in Bethel's first cyclocross races, held on the East side of lover's lane in conditions described as cool, damp, and muddy. That means good conditions for this style of racing which mixes bicycle racing with an obstacle course in an event, which is both challenging and a great deal of fun.

The results of Sunday's races were as follows:

Elementary School Class (1 1/2 mile) 1st, Erik Froberg; 2nd, Stephen Snyder; 3rd, Karl Barth.

Jr. High School Class (1 mile) 1st, Jeff Hastings; 2nd, Tony Butters; 3rd, Kenny Pooley.

Mixed Class Relay (1 1/2 miles) 1st, Barth-Hastings; 2nd, Froberg-Pooley; 3rd, Snyder-Butters.

An exhibition race over a tough 1 1/2 mile course was run by Art Froberg and Henry Dombkowski amid loud cheering by the spectators.

This event was the first of three such events being held in Bethel under the sponsorship of the Bethel Bicentennial Horizons Committee. On Nov. 2 another group of training races will be held, followed by Championship races on Nov. 9. Everyone is encouraged to come and participate or watch.

All officers pulled down the banner on his father's property on Thursday. The barn was built by Charles Farrington over a hundred years ago—who purchased the land from Joel Merrill, then a next door neighbor. The rugged structure beams put together with wood pegs the means of carpentry may have been the project of a "barn building bee" as was the thing years ago when one needed a building put up. The whole families got in on the bee, men to build, women to cook. The chore of the children was to carry water to the workers but mostly ended in fun as was reported by one who attended quite a few "bees." The barn had served many families, shelter for the many animals, their means of transportation and food animals, down to the modern auto.

The Boy Scouts held a campout this week end at the ball field. Although the weather was cool and rainy the water did not dampen anyone's spirits and everything went off as scheduled with several parents braving the rain to attend. The shooting gallery was a great success irrespective of age and sex. The broad jump was a favorite with all the parents with one of the more athletic mothers making a three point landing. The monkey bridge was crossed by some daring parents after a bit of coaxing from the Scouts and the rockets were great fun. One went directly to the maple tree, one was lost altogether and one decided to get vicious and sent everyone scattering. The first aid station was well attended and gave the Scouts plenty of practice and the reports are that all survived the cooking. All in all it was a tiring but fun week end.

How Casco can help you increase your savings interest "batting average"

Ends confusion and makes things simple again.

Savings Manager is the first true savings service. And only Casco has it! It ends the confusion and difficulty of trying to use more than one of the six different ways to save. Every detail about your savings is shown on a simple statement mailed to you every month in which you make a savings deposit or withdrawal.

Your Savings Option Chart

Day in/Day out	for immediate withdrawability
90-Day Notice	for money you may need in three months
4 Different Rates of Interest on Long-Term Savings	for higher interest rates on money you can commit from one to six years.

$100 can mean a higher interest "batting average"

Many banks still insist that you have $500 (or more) before they'll pay you the new higher interest rates. But you can commit as little as $100 at Casco for up to four years. (Federal law still requires a $1,000 deposit for 4- through 6-year deposits.) Every statement shows you the separate interest rates you're earning and what your average is. Watch your interest "batting average" increase every month as you move money from a lower yielding to a higher yielding part of your account.

Talk soon to one of the friendly helpful people at any Casco office about Saving Managers many other benefits.

We're always thinking...

SHAKESPEARE AT GOULD
OCTOBER 29 AT 8:00 O'CLOCK

The Theater at Monmouth will present "Conspiracy in Rome" and "Bottoms Dream" at Gould Academy's Bingham Hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 29, at 8:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend what promises to be an exciting evening of Shakespeare.

Based on Acts I, II and III of the full play "Julius Caesar," "Conspiracy in Rome" is a brief (45 minute) play in itself. The heart of Julius Caesar—in its high tension and intrigue surrounding the murder of Caesar—is kept intact. Monmouth actors will portray Brutus, Casca and Cassius, the three leaders of the plot against Caesar; while Caesar is represented in an off-stage voice and an eight-foot high statue. "Conspiracy in Rome" is an unforgettable powerful experience.

Also a complete drama in itself, "Bottoms Dream," taken from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," concerns the rehearsal and performance of "Pyramus and Thisbe"—itself very tragical mirth—by the cloddish workmen of Athens. The rehearsal is interrupted and the leading man much distracted by the spirits Puck and Titania. Actors and puppets join together in this delightful farce.

RUMFORD COMMUNITY CONCERT POSTPONED

The Rumford Community Concert scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 29, has been postponed and a new date will be announced.

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN

Halloween is usually accompanied by happy thoughts but in some households this year it will be a sad occasion because of the death or injury of a child member of the family.

Children cross the dark streets on trick-or-treat expeditions and many are injured or killed annually by automobiles. Still other types of catastrophes have happened in the past, such as candy dipped in ant poison, lead poison or some other caustic material, being given to children as a treat.

It is unrealistic to think that trick-or-treat will soon be stopped as a Halloween activity. Why not encourage the children to do this right after school, perhaps from 3 p. m. to 7 p. m., and before the evening meal? Parents should not let any young children out after dark by themselves. Parents should see that the children never eat any treats until the parents themselves have had a chance to sort through the goodies to eliminate any suspicious items.

If children wear Halloween costumes, parents should see that these garments are flame resistant. If the costumes treated with flame-resistant material are washed or cleaned, they lose their flame-resistant properties. These should be treated after cleaning or discarded when dirty.

Children have difficulty seeing when they wear Halloween masks because of the small slits for the eyes. Cosmetics or stage make-up can be used rather than a mask.

Reflective tape should be applied to the arms and legs of the costumes or costumes with reflective decorations should be used after dark.

Union and association members employed in white-collar occupations numbered 5.9 million in 1974, a rise of 673,000 from 1972, the U. S. Department of Labor reports.

TO THE PEOPLE OF MAINE:

The Maine Woodsmen's Association boycott of Maine paper companies has one central purpose: to force the paper companies to pay a fair price for pulp wood. All the other problems at issue in the boycott (the use of Canadian bonded workers in Maine, the new truck weight law, etc.) are secondary to this central economic question. If the companies would pay a fair price for wood, then these other problems would disappear. The economic demands of the Woodsmen's Association are just for the price companies currently pay for pulpwood is much lower in Maine than in other parts of the country. Everyone who lives and works in Maine should support the boycott, for if the woodsmen are victorious in their struggle, the entire state of Maine will benefit.

Most independent Maine woodsmen are deeply in debt to banks, savings and loan institutions, or finance companies and these financial institutions should support the woodsmen in the demand for a decent income. A woodsman must invest $40,000 or more in equipment before he can go into business. Already many woodsmen have lost their equipment, for the prices that the paper companies are currently paying for wood is so low that the woodsmen are unable to keep up their payment. In such circumstances, woodsmen obviously have little incentive to remain in business. If you are not making any money anyway, why not let the bank take back your skidder or truck? But the bank or finance company doesn't want a skidder. These lending institutions want to see the woodsmen's mortgage payments coming in, for if the woodsmen keep up their payments the banks will be able to reinvest this money in other enterprises. In this respect the current economic situation in the woods not only hurts the woodsmen but everyone in the Maine banking and business community.

An increase in the price the paper companies pay for wood would also stimulate the economy of the entire state. Such an increase might also mean a modest rise in the price that businesses in Chicago or St. Louis pay for paper. But businesses in these prosperous sections of the country can easily absorb such an increase in costs. On the other hand, an increase in the buying power of Maine Woodsmen, who constitute probably the largest, single group of workers in the state would have a stimulating effect on retail sales, housing, and every other area of Maine's economy. At present, the seven huge national and multinational corporations which control Maine's woods industry drain off an enormous proportion of our wealth. The profits from this industry go to pay the salaries and the generous expense accounts of executives in New York, and to pay dividends to the banks, insurance companies, etc., which have invested in the paper industry. An increase in the price of pulpwood would hardly effect the lifestyle of the corporate and financial power-brokers of New York, but such an increase would mean a dramatic improvement in the lifestyle of the Woodsmen and everyone else in Maine. If a higher share of the profits from this industry remains in the state, in the form of payments to Maine workers, then the entire state will benefit.

An increase in the price of pulpwood would also lead to dramatic benefits for everyone who drives on Maine highways. Currently, Maine woodsmen must overload their trucks if they are to earn a minimal return on their investment. These overloaded trucks pose a constant danger to Maine motorists. Overloaded trucks also tend to break down highway roads and the resultant repair costs must be paid for by the Maine taxpayer. The truckers themselves do not want to overload their trucks, for they realize that overloading leads to increased danger to themselves and increased wear on their equipment. But if economic pressures force truckers to overload, they will continue to do so. Changes in the truck weight law will not solve this problem. Only an increase in the price that paper companies pay for pulpwood will remove the overloaded trucks from our highways.

If Maine is a chronically depressed state, the primary reason is that ours is a colonial economy. The capital to finance Maine's industry comes from the megalopolis to the south of us, and the profits from our industry return to Boston and New York and Philadelphia. Our colonial status works to the disadvantage of everyone in Maine. The local managers of our paper industry may enjoy a little more affluence than the millworkers or the woodsmen, but even these managers are not getting rich. The real benefits of

FRIENDSHIP'S GARDEN

I have a precious Eden,
It is found within my heart.
I call it Friendship's Garden,
Where we meet to never part.
Blooming in my garden fair,
Are sweet forget-me-nots:
The little pansies growing there,
Are precious, happy thoughts.
The bright red rose of beauty rare,
Tells us of friend's great love;
The fragrance fills the very air,
We think of God above.

Look also to the lily white,
So fresh, so pure, so sweet;
In all a very lovely sight,
A story quite complete.

Our friends are like these flowers,
With a beauty all their own;
Our tears may be the showers,
Our love a seed that grows.

"A friend loveth at all times
...Proverbs 17:17).
(A tribute to our Bethel friends,

Letters to the Editor

Oct. 10, 1975

To the Editor:
I cannot put off writing any longer. Why is it, so many do not see the beauty around them. I have been away from my beautiful town of Bethel for over 32 years and miss everyone of them. My twin has renewed the Bethel paper for me for 32 years also. Mrs. Morgan, please never stop writing your column, it is like a extra letter from home every week. If you ever put your writings in a book form may I be one of the first to buy it.

Mrs. Ethelyn McMillin Caillouet
Iota, La. 70543
Box 1065.

To the Editor:

As the leaves have fallen and fall is here, this brings hunting season. Before hunting season comes the look season and after that comes snowmobiling.

I have some animals that run around my farm, both tame and wild, and people are welcome to come and look all they please. My father lived here for 50 years and had no problems, but nowadays people don't seem to respect others property.

I am asking those people who travel outside the town road limits on the so-called Smith road to please refrain from doing so. The field opposite Dwight Merrill's on the Flat Road is also "off limits" to vehicles.

I am writing this at this time in hopes that no posting of my property will be necessary. The snowmobile club has had the use of the fields and trails for a number of years and have never abused their permission. If traveling in my fields continues I will have no recourse but to post the whole place the year round.

corporate power—the salaries of up to $700,000 a year, the stock option plans, the company yachts and airplanes, the lavish expense accounts—all these fruits of Maine industry are going to people outside this state. If the woodsmen can force the paper companies to pay some attention to the needs of Maine people, then they will have demonstrated that we can be acting together, effectively challenge the right of the paper companies to treat Maine as their colony.

Everyone in Maine has a stake in woodsmen's struggle, and we should all support them in any way we can. Banks should grant woodsmen a moratorium on loan payments until this labor dispute is resolved. The Maine Guarantee Authority should guarantee loans to woodsmen for the purchase of equipment. We should all demand that our governor pay attention to the needs of small businessmen already operating in Maine, instead of flying around the country attempting to lure new corporations into the state. We should demand that the courts and law enforcement officials treat the woodsmen fairly. The claim of the paper companies that it would be illegal for them to bargain with the woodsmen is nonsense. The paper companies can bargain with the woodsmen any time they decide to do so. The boycott must continue until the paper companies show a willingness to negotiate in good faith. Until this time, all Maine citizens should be prepared to offer their support to the woodsmen. The battle the woodsmen are fighting is our battle too.

—The Citizen's Committee on the Maine Economy.

S. A. D. #44 DIRECTORS MEET

The board voided the previous appointment of a school physician and decided to explore the reappointment of a school physician.

Passed over was the agenda item concerning allocation of an additional $424 toward the use of skiways and slopes needed for extracurricular skiing. This would have been in conjunction with $1,376 approved previously to meet an anticipated budget item of $1,800 expected to be required for the use of skiways and slopes.

The board approved the first reading of a policy change moving the date of preliminary budget material being in building principal's hands from Nov. 1 to Jan. 1. Also given preliminary approval was a date change from Jan. 1 to March 1 for a tentative budget to be presented to the board. Current state law requires that a school district budget meeting is to be held prior to June 1.

The board's negotiating committee was instructed to begin negotiations with employees of the district who are not affiliated with the Telstar Educators Association.

The board confirmed the appointment of Raymond Brennick of Farmington, S. A. D. 9 superintendent, as the S. A. D. 44 representative on the panel arbitrating the dispute between the S. A. D. 44 board and the Telstar Educators Association.

The directors confirmed the employment of Edna Curtis as a school lunch employee as a replacement for Sherry Young, who resigned to accept employment elsewhere.

The nomination of Timothy Kavanaugh to fill the vacancy in the Telstar Art Department failed to receive the nine votes required for approval.

A motion was made to table indefinitely any action on an agenda item concerning appointment of coaches and assistant coaches of sports at Telstar for the remainder of the current school year. As the adjournment hour of 10 o'clock arrived and 75% of the board members present did not desire to extend no action was possible on the issue.

Board members not present Monday evening were: John Gasser, Betty Ann Hastings, Bethel; Milton Mills, Woodstock.

Greenwood City —

— Mrs. Collette Morgan, Corres. —

Panoramic beauty may be found in many places but there is only one North Haven. Here is true charm. Rolling across Penobscot Bay waters we looked for the colorful lobster buoys which welcomed us.

We just spent ten days there away from the bustling, striving world. Before you even touch the island, you notice the sheer beauty of the rolling land and the sea; add to that the calms, the winds, the sunsets and the changing tides plus the friendly people, and you know this island has some of the best things of life.

Nearly always when the ferry arrives, a different atmosphere prevails. The road comes alive with people and dogs, all converging at the dock and store. The main reason for this is a chance to get outside, to laugh, and to joke, and to enjoy the sociability.

Most of our time was spent on the north side of the island and on various beaches.

From many places I saw the lobstermen slip through the narrow passages between the ledges to the open sea. Soon they'd be gone except for the throbbing of motors through the air. The following gulls subsided, then all was still. Time moved on. The sun climbed to give us many summerish days. The sea turned deep blue at a distance and dark emerald near by.

Walking one day alone on a beach, I left to enter the forest where a vagrant breeze soured among the spruces. At last coming to another cove I heard a sudden splash. Racing and leaping through the water were several harbor seals. A few moments before these bewickered creatures had been on a near-shore ledge, low in profile, a place they usually choose to bask in the sun. This creature seems clumsy out of water but in, it's streamlined and beautiful, its fore flippers are snug to its body and drives itself with its hind flippers.

The ravens high in the spruces experimented with various sounds. They babbled, chortled and cackled, amusing themselves with their repertoire.

Climbing to the top of the hill beyond the house there were birds and birds of many kinds. The smell of salt spruce and magic of rolling waters brought irresistible enchantment.

As we ate our lunch one day, the sparrows joined us, in the nightshade vines where they ate the red, egg-shaped berries which it bore in drooping clusters. A great blue heron across the water on Boy-Scout Island displayed an almost awkward grace as it took its way beyond the rocky cove and rough ledges. We heard the cry of the loon sometimes described as mournful, mirthful, sinister, defiant, or uncanny. At any rate it is undeniably distinctive. It is almost certain to challenge the dull-est ear and the most inert imagination. In those who know instinctively the voices of Nature, it produces a thrill or a response which only the elect understand.

At low tide a multitude of creatures are exposed on the flats; star fish with possibly a mussel in its embrace, sea urchins, with their spines, I think of them as sea-porcupines. There were urchins hiding among the mosses away from the gulls. Here, too, tall thistles and beach dandelions grew among the flotsam. For a beachcomber there was lovely driftwood. In two different places I was greeted by a mink hurrying about its business. Cries of the sea birds came from a gray void and swish of wings passed.

I loved our last afternoon. There was a fierce blowing wind, the sea took on a grim look. We went to the Narrow Place where the road has the sea on each side; one side very near the water and the other across a field. The waters rolled landward in mountain corrugations. Swelling ridges hurried themselves upon the rocky shores and broke in a crash, sending white spray high into the air. Specks of it flecked my glasses, my cheeks, my camera lens and touched my lips with salt. The sun was gradually vanishing to the other side of the world leaving the incoming tide to beat unceasingly upon the shifting sands.

Night came. Stars blinked in the purple sky, the moon sailed high, Rockland and Camden lights twinkled, the wind died somewhat. I looked into the far reaches of foreverness. A robin chirped in a near-by tree.

So closed another chapter of North Haven visits with memories which will steer our course until another year.

Eric Dombkowski, one of the best schoolboy runners to wear a rebel cross country uniform for Coach John Applin at Telstar Regional High School lowered the schools course record in last Saturday's dual meet against previously undefeated Monmouth on the rain soaked demanding 2.7 mile home circuit. The occasion was to be the last time that Dombkowski, a senior, would compete on his home course and in doing so he took sole possession of the record he held jointly with Mark Wagner of Livermore Falls at 13:56. Dombkowski's new mark of 13:55 helped Telstar defeat Monmouth.

Bethel Head Start

We have finally settled down after a busy week. That is exactly what last week was. In three days we finished up all our physicals at Dr. Scarlata's in Norway.

This week we started out with a rainy day on Monday, but Judy and Sandra had plenty of activities for inside play and crafts. On Monday night the parents enjoyed a delicious pot luck supper, followed by a discussion on "Four years olds" led by Denis Corrin, child psychologist from Bryant Pond. Those attending the supper for parents were: Mary Murphy, Danny and Louella Cole, Marguerite Tuttle, Phyllis Jackson, Jean Monzo, Ann Patten, Kay Brown Louise Chapman, Joyce Hoyt, Ed and Sharon Rice, Pat and Warren Merrill. Others present were Pat and Richard Kimball, Carol and Irving York, Charlene Lever, Head Start Director, and our guest and wife, Denis and Fay Corrin.

Also at the meeting, policy council members and parent group officers were elected for the year. Those elected to serve on the policy council, Head Start's policy making body, were: Jean Monzo and Kay Brown as present parents, and Joyce Hoyt as alternate. Irving York was elected to serve as past parent and Denis Corrin will be our community leader. The parents elected the following for their parent group—Louella Cole, chairwoman, Pat Merrill, vice chairwoman, Marguerite Tuttle, secretary, and Ann Patten as treasurer.

On Wednesday, 11 of our children attended the clinic held at the Congregational Church. Thursday, we journeyed to the Rumford Wild Animal Farm where we got to see lots of animals, and had a picnic lunch.

Our thanks this week to volunteers, Jean Monzo, Linda Hae-

BETHEL SCHOOLS OBSERVE FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

In observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5-11, the Bethel Fire Department conducted various exercises for the Crescent Park and Ethel Bisbee Schools students. On Tuesday, Oct. 7, the first grade classes visited the fire station for a short discussion on fire safety and a tour of the facilities under the direction of Fire Chief Harold Carver and some department members.

The kindergarten and grade two classes were visited by the firemen and one of their trucks was brought to school for display to the students. In the afternoon, the firemen went to the Crescent Park School, where they put on a demonstration for the grade three, four and five students. A small, replica wooden building was set on fire and the firemen demonstrated methods of escape and fire fighting.

All schools held fire drills during the week, practicing proper methods of evacuation in case of a real fire.
